I like this free download manager but I would like to know why you didn't include any form of statistics. Were you doing that because it doesn't give statistics for the free version or are there no statistics at all? Thanks for the review. I had problems with downloading certain files with the free version. May I ask if you know if there's a way to get the statistics? I would like to know the download speed in KB/sec as well as overall time taken to download a file. What is the free version? I'm using a new install of Win7, but using the old YM release. You have to add the "&time=" parameter in the end of the link to get the time. The reason is because it's dynamic. For example, instead of time="800", you would have time="time_id=1&time=800. I am having problems with downloading files, could you please help. What error do you get? If you see an 'error message', you can use the 'pause' button to view and check the current network status, the amount of downloaded and the amount of total files. Sorry to be vague about this, but I don't want to give away the secret. I am having problems with downloading files, could you please help. What error do you get?
