It comes close to bricking my computer. The software exists in the form of two variants. One with Age/date restrictions and one without. Both are fussy in the ruling out which one you are trying to install. I have it an an opportunity PC and was running Windows 7/8/10. Sadly things aren't quite what they should be on the W10 version. Gone is the control panel and the entire offending app is tucked away in a folder taking up 18 gig and the uninstall tool gives me the choice of keeping both or selecting one at random to uninstall. There are a few other factors that make me have my hairs raised. I'm not talking about a conman but someone that does not act by the rules of the game. For me I say good riddance and abandon ship. Hope this article helps others avoid a bad time. sasha August 7, 2018#074554 I don'tthink I can trust your, site.I'll check the reviews,to be sure
