The Pirate Bay is the galaxy 39 s most resilient BitTorrent site.Q: How to make popover with images in ionic angular I have a list item in Ionic whose content is updated by a remote service which returns an array of objects. Inside the list item I have a button that calls a function that opens a popover displaying the user's profile. What I want to do is load a picture inside the popover like this: How can I do this? Do I have to set a image inside an array in the popover controller or in the model, and then write a load image function to load the image and show it to the user? Any help will be appreciated A: I was actually able to solve my problem. Basically I had a popover that I had to render on the click of my list item button. But I had to modify the $ionicPopover service to return me a template instead of just a reference to the popover's HTML code. Then I was able to add the template of the image to the $ionicPopover and render it inside the popover itself. The part that sets the image is: `var popoverContent = ''; var iop = $ionicPopover.fromTemplateUrl('/img.png', { scope: $scope, animation: 'ionic-loading-circles', loaderTemplate: true }).then(function (popoverCtrl) { $scope.opCtrlr = popoverCtrl; popoverCtrl.setContent(popoverContent); });` And in the callback I show the image: `iop.then(function (popover) { $scope.opCtrlr.show(popover); });` Tag: 2 Cine I haven't been writing much on this site because I have been busy with work, so this post will be short and sweet. I am excited to share with you all that I am planning on starting my own film blog on my own website. I am a bit nervous and a bit excited all at once, mainly due to the two Cine posts that I have already written. As the title suggests, the focus of this blog will be to cover American Horror Story 595f342e71
