Measurement of the bioavailability of 4-Methoxymethylamphetamine (VMMA) and 3,4-Dihydroxy-4-Methylamphetamine (DOM) in rat plasma by high-performance liquid chromatography/tandem mass spectrometry. A method was developed to assay 4-Methoxymethylamphetamine (DOM) and 3,4-dihydroxy-4-methylamphetamine (VMMA) in rat plasma by reversed-phase liquid chromatography-electrospray ionization-tandem mass spectrometry (LC-ESI-MS-MS). A study was carried out to establish the optimum conditions for the LC-MS-MS analysis of VMMA and DOM. The optimum analysis time was 90 min. The compound was well separated from the plasma matrix and other most abundant endogenous plasma compounds by the use of an on-line SPE. A fairly clean chromatogram for both VMMA and DOM was obtained with a triple quadrupole mass spectrometer and a selected reaction monitoring (SRM) mode. No single impurity was found in the chromatogram of the internal standard 4-methoxyamphetamine. The apparent in vitro plasma clearances of both VMMA and DOM were calculated. The in vitro plasma clearances were found to be 24.9 +/- 2.3 ml/min/kg for VMMA and 6.9 +/- 0.7 ml/min/kg for DOM. The method was applied to a study of the bioavailability of DOM and VMMA. The time-courses of the plasma levels of DOM and VMMA were measured up to 40 h after administration of VMMA (1 mg/kg i.v.) and up to 60 h after administration of DOM (1 mg/
