"FIFA 22 features a technology we've been working on for over two years," commented PES producer Kiyoshi Yoshida. "It represents the first step in making the global game-playing experience of both games even more realistic and authentic." Motion capture technology allows players to experience realistic and real-time tackle animations and player movements. For the first time in PES history, head-on tackles, tackles performed in pivoting movements and other real-life situations are also enabled in the game. As in FIFA, players will be able to place the ball with a single player-controlled swipe, reminiscent of a smooth dribble. Since FIFA's launch, players have been able to control the ball in smaller spaces with PES' Pro Smart Play, allowing players to score more varied goals and move closer to the opposition goal. The introduction of passing assists, a new feature exclusive to PES 2017, will allow defenders to intercept and beat a player through creative passes. The new system takes account of the defence's ability to block, and adjusts the direction of the assist accordingly. The challenge for players is to create a perfect lead pass to put the ball in the best position for an attacker. The ball might change direction multiple times as it passes over players, defenders and the goalkeeper. This adds a new dimension to the challenges of dribbling and passing. If the goalkeeper uses a quick flick of the ball, the outcome is unpredictable, but on the whole it's likely the ball will continue in the direction in which it was sent and not bounce off players or the goal. Key Features: - Global Gameplay: Play Fifa 22 against CPU and online human opponents in the same competitive environment as FIFA 17. One-against-all, free-for-all and competitive modes are available depending on the type of match played. The biggest addition to the FIFA franchise is the ability to capture, share and compare shots from a 360-degree viewpoint in the new Player Action View (PAV) – allowing players to view the game from any angle while taking or breaking down team goals. - How you play your way: Play your way by using the newly-implemented Step Over system, where players can play creative passing with defenders by using deft footwork and big-game awareness. In addition, the game also takes into account passing and shooting in terms of control, and players can choose to
