Field of the Invention This invention relates generally to the field of power transmissions and more particularly to a shifting pattern for a power transmission which is simultaneously both functionally and ergonomically efficient. 2. Discussion of the Related Art Power transmission arrangements have been developed to transmit power between a drive system and a driven mechanism or implement. Examples of power transmission arrangements can be seen in a wide variety of uses from lawn mowers to snow blowers. A particular utility of power transmission arrangements is their use in a powered vehicle. For example, all terrain vehicles, forestry products, off-road vehicles and a wide variety of industrial and construction vehicles are examples of vehicles which are powered by transmission assemblies. Transmission assemblies, like most mechanical assemblies, are subject to wear or damage over time. As wear or damage occurs, one of the gears or other components of the transmission assembly can become worn or damaged. Due to this wear or damage, it may be necessary to replace the damaged components or the entire transmission assembly. Replacing a damaged transmission assembly may be costly, due to the purchase price of a new transmission assembly or components that must be purchased in addition to the purchase price of the new transmission assembly. The power transmission assemblies employed in vehicles and other devices are often driven by an engine that is either mechanically coupled to the transmission assembly or is connected with another drive motor. If the engine is mechanically coupled to the transmission assembly, the transmission assembly must be driven at the rate of the engine. If the engine is connected with another drive motor, the transmission assembly may be independently driven by the engine or drive motor. Whether the transmission assembly

This is what I have written UPDATE Table1 SET Table1.Quantity2 = 1 WHERE Table1.ItemCode = 'ItemCode001' AND Table1.PriceCode2 = 'priceCode002' AND Table1.Quantity1 = 0 However this does not work. How can I achieve this? A: What you have written will update anything with that ItemCode, however, I think you need to use a semi-colon to separate the WHERE clause. UPDATE Table1 SET Table1.Quantity2 = 1 WHERE Table1.ItemCode = 'ItemCode001' AND Table1.PriceCode2 = 'priceCode002' AND Table1.Quantity1 = 0; From MSDN: In a stored procedure or a batch, use a semicolon (;) to separate each statement in a batch. When you run a batch file, do not use a semicolon to separate the statements in a batch. You must run a separate execution of the batch file for each statement in a batch. Also, I'd recommend wrapping your code in a TRY..CATCH statement. You can use it to handle any errors that may occur. BEGIN TRY UPDATE Table1 SET Table1.Quantity2 = 1 WHERE Table1.ItemCode = 'ItemCode001' AND Table1.PriceCode2 = 'priceCode002' AND Table1.Quantity1 = 0; END TRY BEGIN CATCH SELECT ERROR_NUMBER() AS ErrorNumber, ERROR_SEVERITY() AS ErrorSeverity, ERROR_STATE() AS ErrorState, ERROR_PROCEDURE() AS ErrorProcedure,
