Q: Python function returns None, but the function is working fine I have the following function in Python 3.x

def dim(b, n): return np.prod([[b[x]] for x in range(1, n)])

def dim1(A, n): """ similar to dim function, but return values in matrix """ B = A.T b = B.shape[0] N = A.shape[1] f = dim(B, n) h = dim(A, n) return f

The function dim is working fine when I use it in other part of script. The problem is when I use dim1 to compute two matrices A and B and make the following return dim1(A, 2) I get an error saying dim1() object has no attribute 'shape'
